

Situation Report

National Weather Service Springfield, Mo.

Monday, March 2, 2015 3:30 PM

Rain Changing to Wintry Mix and Snow Tuesday Night and Early Wednesday

Hazard Risk:

- Rain becoming mixed with sleet and freezing rain Tuesday night through early Wednesday before changing to all snow through Wednesday Evening.
- Highest snowfall accumulations expected over south central Missouri with 2 to 5 inches expected and locally higher amounts possible.
- Sharp decrease in snowfall accumulation near I-44.

Ice Accumulation through Wednesday Morning

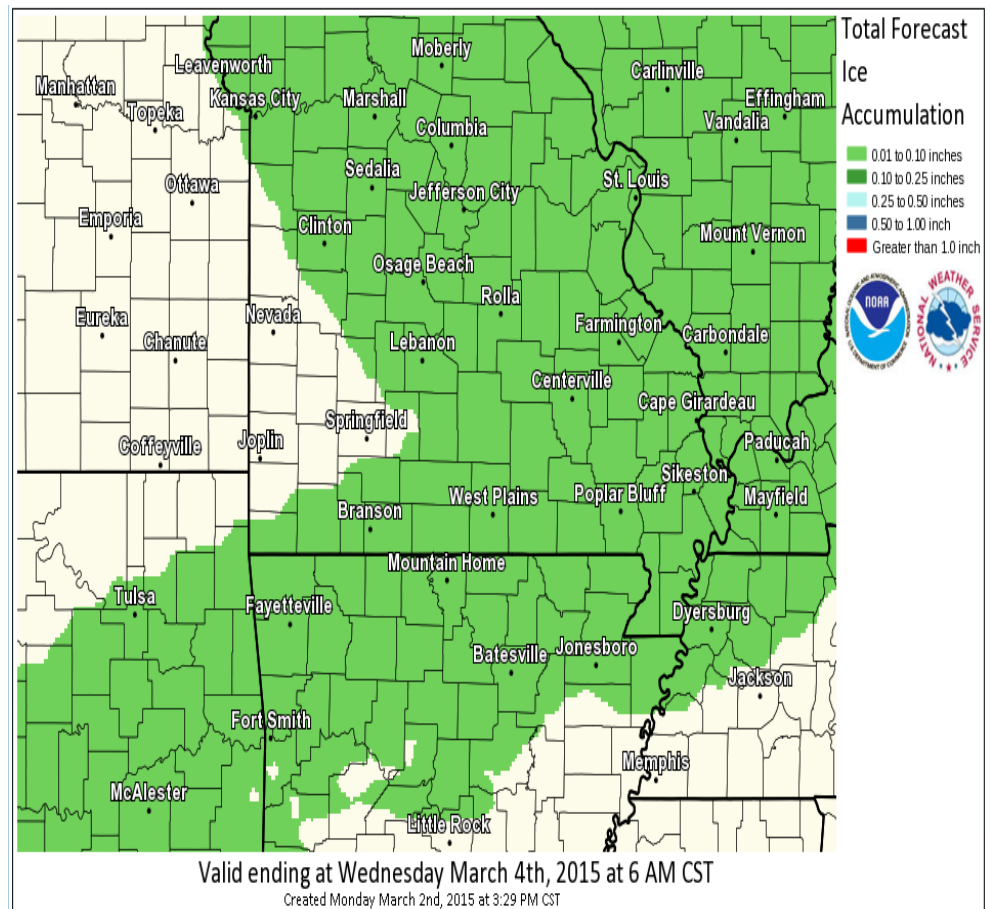

Winter Hazard Risk:

None

Limited

Elevated

Significant

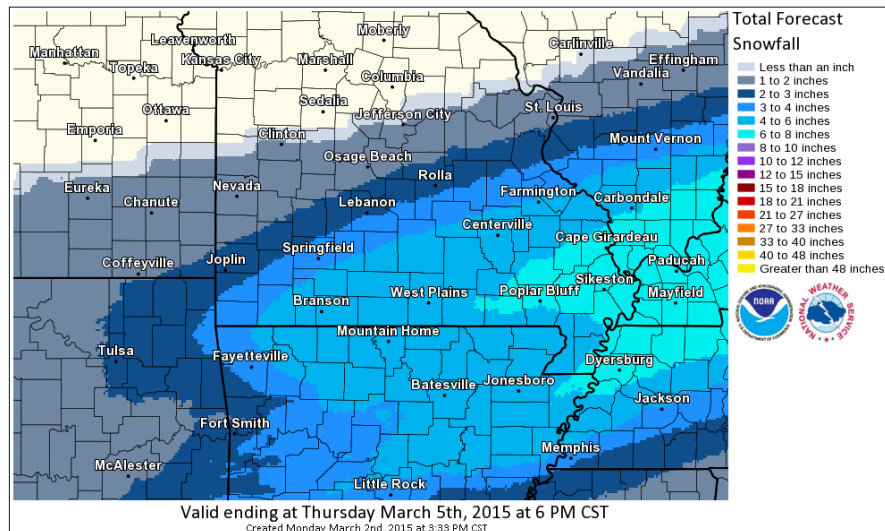

Situation Report

National Weather Service Springfield, Mo.

Sunday, February 15, 2015 Midnight

Areas & Timing:

- A mix of rain, sleet, freezing rain and snow is expected along and north of Highway 54 Tuesday evening.
- The wintry mix will spread southward through the overnight hours.
- Snow will continue over much of the Missouri Ozarks and southeast Kansas on Wednesday.
- Snow will end from west to east Wednesday night.

Follow the Winter Briefing Page for updates

<http://www.crh.noaa.gov/sgf/?n=dss3>

Impact:

- Greatest impact late Tuesday night through Wednesday night
- Rapid snow accumulation will be possible in heavier snow bands
- Visibility near $\frac{1}{4}$ mile or less in heavier snow

Monitor:

- Areas of higher snow and sleet accumulations may be adjusted with time
- Could be high variability in accumulations